

An Introduction to Social Pedagogy

Wednesday 18th April 2018 from 17.30 – 19.30 at UCLan

The Social Pedagogy Professional Association (SPPA) in association with the University of Central Lancashire (UCLan)'s School of Social Work, Care & Community; and ThemPra Social Pedagogy would like to invite you to our free-to-attend event, giving you the chance to network with other organisations and gain some experience of social pedagogical practice.

The event is taking place at UCLan's Harrington Building, 11 Victoria Street, Preston, PR1 7QS on Wednesday 18th April 2018 from 17.30 – 19.30pm and will offer a creative and refreshing experience of the potential of a relationship-based approach to working with people. Attendees will be introduced to social pedagogy, which is a theoretical and practical approach to policy, practice, education and training.

Social pedagogy provides practitioners with the skills to help people feel. It brings together vocational occupations and professions, and bridges the gaps between them by supporting the flexibility of workers moving between different types of children's and adult's sector work. It can provide a common core of knowledge and skills, and facilitate inter-professional work in integrated services.

The event will be of benefit to anyone working in a creative profession with people across the life course; also to those in residential care settings and more. Find out more about social pedagogy on the SPPA website, and book your free attendance at the event below.

This event is being organised with the support of University of Central Lancashire's School of Social Work, Care and Community, and ThemPra Social Pedagogy.
